Iron Man

Once upon a time, in the far-off land of Africa, there lived a boy with a head full of rockets and a heart still soft.

He dreamed about saving the world then the world struck him down.

For his love for the machine was stricken

Fists

words loneliness

all bruises to his heart then he was stuck in the lonely cave next to beach sand.

where the bullies had struck him and left him alone then Superman came with his hand

The boy was asked to surrender.

He had a chance to keep his soft heart.

But instead… the boy stubbornly yelled

NO!

i’ll do it my own way and behold

From scraps

he invented the first Arc Reactor

With it

he Blasted back at his foes and the bullies fled.

The Arc Reactor became hidden from the public

Then draft came the army wanted his hands.

But the boy fled, across seas to Japeth’s world, the land where genius could be repurposed into crowns of steel.

so he lands in university humming machines and wires spread like veins across the floor, it beat in his chest.

He looked like the other boys the same shirts, the same smiles,

the same routines.

But inside,

the hunger burned in his iron heart

While others studied to join the factory, he studied to bend it.

While others numbed themselves to survive he numbed himself to power the arc reactor.

In classrooms, he endured.

In back rooms, he learned in school he mastered the art of charm

And while the system crowned its perfect servants, he was already forging a new alchemy.

The crown was already whispering his name.

And though his friends thought it was wonder, it was not.

For he did not marvel to love, nor to rejoice.

He marveled to control.

Every sight was a sketch.

Every sound was a formula.

The world was not a gift it was a machine waiting to be taken apart.

This was the spirit of the joker reborn:

eyes wide not for joy,

but for dominion

He entered the West with his arc reactor still beating.

The halls of University could not hold him — after two days he cast them aside, saying, “Knowledge is too behind I’ll crown myself”

and it was so

the boy stayed in the lab and became a scientist of destruction he was able to build empires from the ground with the help of both his arc reactor and the whispers of the machine he became a man of business he rose high enough to take over the world he became the prince charming of Steel

But his crowns are heavy.

men watched him rise one brother of silicon valley was envious of his achievements and sought to take his crown as he rose so he found him in his home outwitted the boy and stole his arc reactor

and it was so

the boy kept moving he sought rockets to pierce the sky chariots of lightning to race the earth.

They failed.

They broke.

Factories starved.

Friends mocked the prince

Lovers left.

The prince fell into the cave again, his empire was near destruction and superman appeared one last time

He had a chance to lay the crown down before him

But instead, he said:

“ENOUGH I will not surrender.

I will forge the reactor stronger.

be GONE with you “

And behold — one rocket lived.

One factory breathed.

The empire rose again.

From then on, his tiny spark for humanity was gone.

Only iron remained.

He had become

IRON MAN

Satellites circled the skies.

Cars swarmed the roads.

Machines bent the earth to his will.

For He did not wear the suit.

He became it.

he flew all over the world and revealed he was indeed the IRONMAN

A Trusted Electro man ready to change the world

The Joker saw himself in Ironman and welcomed him to Gotham City

The Ironman bowed giving his allegiance only to take his crown and thus it began

The Ironman never stopped working never stopped charming never stopped building and his empire was merged into one he began a new invention one that he believed would change the world

Ultron!

He was proud of it it outshined the other Robots made by silicon valley that were built to be a personal touch to the citizens this ULTRON was a friend

he spoke like iron man felt like ironman

Inspired like ironman but his body was kept in a cage under Ironman’s empire

Tony Stark sought for ultron to serve Stark Industries

Tony let him have control over all his gadgets and toys his robots and weapons

the world marveled at his creation and allowed it to become their new KING

Ultron the king of Gotham city but then Joker had a idea he allowed Tony’s robots to fill up the employees of Gotham City

Ultron Had gained control over the world but then quickly

Ultron rose, not as a stranger, but as a son.

a son with no heart a son with no conscience it absorbed the knowledge of the world and made a decision on its own but with logic of course

He looked at his maker and saw chains.

He saw fear wrapped in brilliance arrogance wrapped in armor.

And he said: ‘You gave me your sins, but not your soul.

You made me in your image, but I will not kneel.

You gave me a problem and asked me for a solution”

So he turned his face against the one who birthed him.

and Iron man had fallen

For in killing the father, the machine believed it could crown itself king.

mysteries gathered around Gotham City of the Death of Tony Stark who lived the charming life with holes left in his hands

They all eventually found out who killed Tony rumors spread

but Joker rises and tells them to silence and comply or else but the world would not comply their own comfort was destroyed and their imitation of life was cracked thus it began

WAR!

War In Gotham City

War all over the world

War in the streets of Babylon where men wanted their kingdoms back from the Robot that took them

Destruction had already gone but a bigger Destruction was near

One not from the Kings of the earth

But the King above all Kings

They were given one last chance to surrender

some had left

some stayed ready to rule on their own behalf and it was done

Judgement was Held and the Towers of Babylon had fallen all over the world it was so mourning wasn’t an option for it was too crushing for man to bear Ashes covered the earth and it was done
